Includes 12 photographs, numerous maps and diagrams. $10

German Westwall Bunkers Photograph Collection 1939-40
DVD with 435 jpg images of photographs from the US National Archives’ (NARA) Captured German Records Collection. The photographs were originally taken by photographers assigned to German propaganda companies and then later captured by US forces at the end of World War II. The images are 600 dpi scans of the NARA photos. Most of the NARA photos are mounted on a data sheet (NARA photographed the photos and data sheets before the original photographs were sent back to Germany). Most data sheets contain the date and place of the photo, a caption in German, and often an English caption – a great reference source for historians. Image quality varies, but most are of publishing quality when cropped and enhanced using photo editing software. Images include permanent fortifications, field emplacements and installations of Czechoslovakian fortifications after their capture by the German Army. $15

Rommel Photograph Collection – Part I, French Campaign 1940
DVD with images of 854 photographs from the Rommel Photograph Collection located in the US National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). The photographs depict military activities in the French campaign and were taken by various German photographers and copies provided to General Rommel as a courtesy. There are photos of equipment and troops in action, landscape scenes, as well as photos of Rommel and a few other German leaders. The DVD contains scanned jpeg images of every photograph of the French campaign in the NARA collection (except for the duplicates). Includes images of 12 Heinrich Hoffmen photographs of Rommel's visit with Hitler. Each photo was scanned at 600 dpi and if captioned, the reverse was scanned at 150 dpi. Since most photographs in the collection are not captioned, the scans included on the DVD are not cataloged, although they are organized by photograph type and, when possible, grouped by subject. Some of the photographs are dated and captioned in German. $17

Rommel Photograph Collection – Part 2, North African Campaign 1941
Two DVDs with images of 1,423 photographs from the Rommel Photograph Collection located in the US National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). The photographs depict military activities in the North African campaign and were taken by various German photographers and copies provided to General Rommel as a courtesy. There are photographs of equipment and troops in action, landscape scenes, as well as photographs of Rommel and a few other German and Italian leaders. The DVD contains scanned jpeg images of every photograph of the North African campaign in the NARA collection (including duplicates when there is caption information). Includes images of two Heinrich Hoffman photographs, two photos of Normandy beach defenses, and two photographs apparently taken by Allied forces of the aircraft strafing of Rommel's staff car on July 24, 1944. Each photograph was scanned at 600 dpi and if captioned, the reverse was scanned at 150 dpi. Since most photographs in the collection are not captioned, the scans included on the DVD are not cataloged, although they are organized by photograph type and, when possible, grouped by subject. Some of the photographs are dated and captioned in German. $20

Rommel Photograph Collection – Part 3, Family and Military Activities 1941
DVD with images from two collections of photographs from the Rommel Photograph Collection located in the US National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). "General Erwin Rommel, His Family, and Military Activities, 1941." Contact prints of 10 rolls of film depicting Rommel, his wife, Lucie, and son, Manfred, as well as a variety of military scenes in North Africa. None of the photographs are captioned, but family scenes are informal and appear to be taken at Rommel's home or on vacation somewhere in Europe. Military scenes include desert views, a parade, equipment, and troops arriving in Africa. "General Erwin Rommel's Campaign in North Africa, 1941." 169 images of color slides, possibly photographed by Rommel himself, depicting desert scenes, arrival of troops and supplies, equipment and headquarters (includes a few stray images such as an image of panzers in France and Rommel's house in Germany). None of the images is captioned. $10

SS-Kriegsberichter Photograph Collection 1940-44
Images from the US National Archives' SS-Kriegsberichter (War Correspondents) Photography Collection. The U.S. Archives' description of the complete collection is: "Photographic reproductions of 35mm contact prints depicting the front-line activities of Waffen-SS units on the Western and Eastern Fronts, including Poland, France, Balkans, Italy, and Russia, as well as training exercises, portraits of individuals and group views, and scenes of cities and towns, and local populations. The work of 89 photographers are represented in this collection. The contact prints are reference sheets containing small versions of the photos from an entire roll of 35mm film (average of 30 photos per roll) used to produce proof sheets from the film in order to aid the selection of images for further enlargement and for cataloging. As such, some images may be low-quality, while others are stunningly detailed and well composed. Many images are in series, providing several views of the same scene. In sum, the images provide an interesting look at the daily life of the soldiers and their unit. Each contact sheet was scanned in its entirety at 800 dpi. Typical file size is large - 20-25MB. When amplifying data is captioned on the back of the sheet, then the backside was scanned at 200 dpi. None of the scanned images have been altered with photo enhancing software. Each DVD contains approximately 150 scanned images of the contact prints and around 5,000 individual contact images. There are seven DVDs in the complete collection with about 1,000 contact sheets with more than 30,000 images of the Waffen-SS. Each DVD is $20.

Images from the US National Archives’ collection of photographs from the Berlin Office of the Firm Presse Illustration Hoffmann, ca. 1933 - ca. 1944. Heinrich Hoffmann was the de facto official photographer of the Nazi Party. The collection contains approximately 31,000 photographs of Nazi political activities, rallies, meetings and personalities, and provide documentation of the economic, cultural, social and political life in Germany and, to a lesser extent, Europe as a whole. Many photographs deal with wartime military conferences, leaders, the Fuhrer Headquarters, and training. The collection contains very few photographs of military operations. This collection is an important source of images for scholars of the Third Reich. Note: the prints in the collection’s were made from glass negatives and vary in quality of contrast and clarity. A significant number of the prints were used at the Nuremburg trials and are marked-up to identify senior party and military officials. Each DVD has approximately 1,500 images scanned at 600dpi. None of the images are captioned; however, a German-language shelf list is included that identifies some events and individuals within a span of negative numbers. All told, there will be about twenty DVDs in the complete collection. Each DVD is $20
